

JuventudES

Rebuilding Pathways From Within

JuventudES connects young people outside of education, employment, or training with the skills and pathways they need to re-engage, through a two-month program that brings together local employers, civic organizations, and public systems around a shared goal. Participants develop in-demand job skills aligned to local labor markets alongside life skills through Passport to Success® (PTS), supported by near-peer tutors who navigate the same communities they serve. The model can be scaled, replicated with local nonprofit or municipal partners in new geographies, or adapted to new populations and sectors, including hospitality, digital careers, and emerging green jobs. When young people reconnect to a future that inspires them, they rebuild pathways not only for themselves, but for their communities. JuventudES brings to life IYF's Rebuilding Pathways for Opportunity Youth model, strengthening the organizations closest to youth so that impact can travel further.
